“Auras aren’t real, its new-age ‘woo-woo!’”

Science is taking auras very seriously.

Pam has a list of scientists and research facilities that are studying auras, as well as stories that are making national news.

Good Morning America: Auras Gain Recognition. <http://abcnews.go.com/GMA/story?id=127539&page=1>

“I can’t see auras, so I don’t believe they exist!”

You may not see them, but you feel them.

We’ve all felt drawn to some people and repelled by others. We’re feeling their electromagnetic field — their aura. And Pam explains how we’ve been using the language of aura colors for centuries. I.E. Green with envy, red with passion, and true blue — all describe those color personalities.

“I don’t like being boxed in or limited by being categorized as a personality type.”

The information about your aura colors is not meant to limit you but to validate you and empower you to live your true nature.

Pam will explain how the aura color personality categories are similar to the Myers Briggs personality types, but more fun and easier to remember.

“Knowing my aura colors seems frivolous and of no use to me.”

Learning about your aura colors is extremely important - they reveal vital information about your personality, life purpose, most fulfilling life direction, relationship compatibility, best career, how you handle money, potential health issues and more. What could be more important than that?

Pam will excite and amaze your hosts and audience with her accurate, detailed descriptions of their personalities.
